Tarik A. Floyd

Washington, D.C. native, Tarik A. Floyd, graduated from Virginia State University (VSU) in 2016, earning a Bachelor of Arts in Mass Communications with an established foundation in Finance. Upon arriving to VSU as a transfer student, Tarik was eager to hit the ground running and make history for his family, literally. As a former collegiate athlete, his ambition and work ethic was unrivaled. He used his upbringing, what set him apart from the crowd and his uncanny ability to code switch as a springboard to “change the game” for minorities hailing from his hometown. After achieving a longstanding aspiration of interning with Marcus and Millichap, Tarik was accepted into Harvard University’s 2017 Leading Finance Program. The opportunity of working with clients and brokers unearthed a real passion for real estate and diverse business opportunities.

At the heart of his work ethic, Tarik desired to transform the image of success and to do so, he understood the significance of mentoring—both gifting and receiving. Tarik was granted the esteemed fortune of being mentored in sales by several accomplished figureheads. One, Stacey Milam, impressed the importance of diligence, character and navigating the precise balance of integrity, energy and tenacity in every effort made Tarik has honed his skillset to build strong relationships across the board to provide unprecedented service to clients and companies alike. Shortly thereafter, in 2019, Tarik launch his own private equity firm, “For The Fam” Investments (FTF). Through FTF, Tarik is committed to curating unconventional partnerships to pursue and procure real estate investments that mimic the same cosmopolitan synergy in urban communities that continue to revolutionize the world around us. Tarik has cultivated the core values of FTF Investments to mirror that which he credits his success—integrity, loyalty, authenticity, service and work ethic.

Lastly, Tarik acutely believes that society's multiple-handicaps have nothing to do with you or your future. Personal success is attainable, and hard work is a character trait in progress. Tarik A. Floyd, CEO of FTF Investments, came to VSU as a transfer student, but left as a TROJAN.
